Thirteen hundred American soldiers, eighty of them so badly younded that they had to be carried an stretchers, had been taken from the stranded transport Northern Pacific this afternoon, and the work of rescue is being rapidly continued despite high winds and rough seas. More than 900 men had been taken from the ship before noon, leaving less than 1,500 on board. The sick and wounded were taken to the naval hospital ship Solace. The navy defluriment took charge of the rescue work today, and it went forward work today, and it went forward with speed and efficiency.

U-Boat Chasers Aid.

Submarine chasers, lifeboats and the breeches buoy were all employed. The transfer of the litter cases was most hazardous on account of the heavy swell. Sailers carried the sick and wounded men on stretchers on loard the small boats which were lashed to the side of the grounded transport. The well soldiers were taken over the side of the Northern Pacifics on ladders and were carried ashore on submarine chasers.

Destroyers were on the scene, also. Lifeboats from the destroyers and chasers made their way through the surf after a terrific stuggle. From twenty to twenty-five soldiers were taken on board each of the big lifeboats. The boats were covered with canvas to protect the soldiers from the spray and each one was followed from the Northern Pacific by an empty boat in case of emergency.

There were moments of tense peril as the sick and wounded were being darried down the sea stales, for the transport was tossing and colling in the surf and great billions of spray

Elkins, superintendent of street construction; R. H. House, city attorney; W. M. Painter, city physician; W. A. Renfro, sexton, and Walter Cleckler, Hill Anderson and Tom Leonard, policemen. NICKLIN FINDS SENTIMENT JUST REVERSE.

Southern League Franchise Means Big Advertisement for Chattanooga,

for Chattanooga,

The activities, of Strang Nicklin, new leader of the Lookouts, have shown that the business men of Chattanooga are not opposed to baseball. On the other hand, it has appeared from all indications that they are almost unanimously for the resumption of Southern league games at Andrews field next summer.

Capt. Nicklin has already secured the promise of financial support of twenty or more business men of the city. The pinn under which the club will be financed provides for popular subscriptions. Those who subscribe, however, do not own stock in the club. If a profit is made during the 1919 season, they will be amply reimbursed for the expenditure. If the schedule of games results in a loss to the club's pocketbook, the financial backers will feel it accordingly.

loss to the club's pocketbook, the financial backers will feel it accordingly.

It has been pointed out that the prospects are for a good season, and the possibility of loss is not considered. Capt. Nicklin has been sounding out the people of Chattanooga considerably and has come to the conclusion that the Lookouts can continue on the diamond profitably. In case they shouldn't, the heaviest loser would be Capt. Nicklin himself. In taking charge of the ball club he has foregone a good job as baseball instructor at the United States military academy. This position he held prior to his entrance into the army.

It is not surprising to see the business men of Chattanooga come out in favor of baseball. Its presence means a big advertisement to the city. If Chattanooga were dropped from the Southern league, it would also be dropped from the list of class A southern cities. New industries coming to locate here would look askance at finding that the town could not support a baseball team.

DIDN'T MAKE GOOD

German U-Boats Unable to Deliver Despite Many Promises.

Washington, Jan. 3.—The time when the German marine staff was assuring the German people that their submarines were rapidly clearing the seas of all ships commanders of the underseas craft were not only losing their own craft, but were unable to sink many vessels because they were too well guarded, says Capt. Persius in an article in the Berliner Tageblatt on the failure of the submarine warfare, according to a wireless dispatch from Berne today, received by the French high commission.

Persius says Germany lost five submarines in 1916, twenty-one in 1917, while sixty-six were lost during January of last year. The dispatch says that at the beginning of 1918 a report which has not been published contained the following message:

"Nearly all steamers are officially protected. Among ninety-eight ships met at sea only two steamers and a sailing wessel were sunk."

Warsaw, Dec. 31.—(A. P.)—Andreas Moraczewski, the Polish premier, said today he was in favor of the creation of an international port at Danzig. In outlining his program, he said: "I desire to see Poland inhabited only by Poles. I do not favor giving special autonomy and schools to the Jews, but do believe in giving them their civic rights if they perform their civic duties. "We have been robbed by both the departing Russians and Germans, the latter trying to destroy our industries and our markets. The allies should consider these difficulties. Territorially, we want what is ours geographically, we want what is ours geographically, we do not want what is German or Ukrainian, but think Lithuania is ours in this sense."

The paper added:

ball more than did its bit in France by helping to keep up the morale of American troops.

This was one of many observations made by Lieut-Col. T. L. Huston, part owner of the New York Yankees, who has just returned from abroad, where he served with the Yankee engineers in the great war.

"The boys in France got a lot of anusement and entertainment out of baseball," said Huston today. "They played it everywhere, behind the lines in rest camps. I want to say that it was a great big help in keeping up the morale of the troops.

"I saw many soldier games in France, and I believe the army may give us some real ball players. As for reports that the soldiers are turned against baseball—don't believe them. There were some 3.000 troopers aboard the steamer I came home on, and when they found out I had an interest in the Yanks, they couldn't talk anything but baseball."

Capt. Huston, as the Yankee magnetic transet between the bit friends believes.

thing but baseball."

Capt. Huston, as the Yankee magnate is known to his friends, believes baseball is coming back with a proverbial bang. He doesn't see any reason for pessimism over the prospects of the sport. He says he is going to hold on to his interest in the Yankees, not only because he loves the game, but because he is highly optimistic over its chances for the biggest boom in its history.

Huston is going to urge his colleagues in the big show to take steps toward caring for ball players whe were disabled in the war. He believes the club owners should provide employment for all such players and mentioned Hugh Miller, a St. Louis player, who had his leg shattered by machine gun fire and won a decoration for capturing two Germans.
